Soundtrack of a Life: New and Selected Poems by Gil Fagiani, translated into Italian by Luigi Bonaffini.

These poems are rich with the details movies, popular songs, social attitudes, political movements —of life in a particular time and place ... reading Fagiani's harrowing dispatches from his own personal hell—raw, poignant, hilarious, and appalling by turns, and sometimes all at once—will leave us shaken, but grateful to him for telling us how it was. With a complete lack of vanity and total commitment to honesty, his self-examination is consistently unflinching.

The Struggle for Sicilian Independence, by Giuseppe Scianò

Edited and Translated into English by Gaetano Cipolla,

Giuseppe Scianò was an ardent supporter of Sicilian Language and culture. He was a true Sicilianist, active in the movement to make Sicily an independent nation because he was convinced that Sicily would have fared better if Garibaldi had not succeeded in making it part of Italy. In his trilogy, Come la Sicilia diventò una colonia, L'esercito dimenticato and La rivolta del sette e mezzo, published in Palermo by Pitti Editore, he rewrote the history of Sicily from the Sicilianist's point of view, without the hagiography of characters that usually accompanies official histories. Giuseppe did not hold back and wrote with a clear understanding of what actually happened, reevaluating the characters who had an important role in the Risorgimento and the formation of the Italian Nation under Victor Emanuel II. Giuseppe Scianò, who passed away in 2022, remains an important figure that represents the undying desire of Sicilians to preserve and defend their language and culture.

Vietnam/University: Two Schools of Thought, by Calogero Lombardo

This memoir of war and university follows the first two books of the Lombardo Family history, Altavilla, Sicily, and Making America. A companion to this book's first section on Vietnam, Worlds Away, is being used in some veterans' PTSD therapy in New York and Chicago.

Calogero has worn many caps during his life, among them: Postal government auditor, Postal manager, rock musician (drummer), carpenter, certified banquet chef, college teacher, actor, director, producer and writer. He is a classical Latin scholar and speaks parts of (nobody speaks/knows all of a language!) American English, Italian, Sicilian, Spanish, a little French, a little Greek, and a lot of Latin, and has forgotten, from non-use, German and Vietnamese.

The Garden of Kolymbethra and Other Poems and Stories about Sicily, by Silvia Falsaperla

This is a book of poems and stories that describe her relationship with Sicily, the island of her origin. This is what prof. Pasquale Verdicchio of the University of California wrote about the book: "As Falsaperla writes in What is in a Name, 'My name is a negative compound', a telling verse (or contra-verse) that colors her collection. After all, how does one construct a map of belonging? Falsaperla dances between nostalgia and knowing, using the former to fuel an imaginary that traces a map toward who and what came before, building a space in which one's own identity might find expression."

Invitation to Join Arba Sicula

Arba Sicula is a non-profit international organization that promotes the language and culture of Sicily. Based at St. John's University, New York, Arba Sicula has nearly 2,000 members throughout the world.

Through its publications and the many activities it sponsors, the organization promotes a positive image of Sicily and Sicilians. This year Arba Sicula celebrates its 34th anniversary. If you are proud of your Sicilian heritage, you will certainly be happy you joined. You can also sponsor your Sicilian friends for membership. We will send them our publications with your compliments.

Arba Sicula promotes Sicilian culture in the following ways:

By publishing Arba Sicula, a unique bilingual journal (Sicilian-English) that focuses on the folklore, literature and the arts of Sicily and her people all over the world. (Included in the membership);

By publishing Sicilia Parra, a 20-page newsletter in English of interest to Sicilians and Sicilian-Americans (Included in the membership);

By organizing cultural events that usually include dinner, lectures, recitals and plays (free to the members and guests);

By publishing supplements to Arba Sicula on special topics of interest to Sicilians; such as The Fig Cake Family; What Makes a Sicilian?; Sicilian Cuisine through History and Legend etc...(Included in the membership)

By disseminating information on Sicily and Sicilians that offers a more correct evaluation of their contributions to western civilization;

By supporting and promoting books that portray Sicilians in a positive light;

By organizing a 12-day tour of Sicily for its members every year at the beginning of June. In 2013 we did our 19th consecutive tour. Our 27th tour will depart around June 3, 2022.
